Leptin-induced obesity (LIO) and its metabolic features are associated with breast cancer risk and severity. The aim of this study was to examine the associations of obesity and breast cancer risk and prognostic factors in breast cancer patients with LIO. We selected 142 women with breast cancer who underwent surgery between 2010 and 2013 at our institution. Anthropometric measures were collected. We examined the associations of breast cancer risk and cancer risk factors with LIO. Disease-free survival (DFS) and overall survival (OS) were examined. Correlations of LIO with objective response to therapy and immunohistochemistry were analysed. We studied 94 patients (66%). Among them, 69 patients (72%) had a body mass index (BMI) >27.5 kg/m². Factors associated with increased risk of LIO included BMI >30 kg/m² (p = 0.009) and family history of breast cancer (p = 0.028). The univariate analysis showed a significant association between LIO and Ki-67 expression (p = 0.017), HER2 overe 570a42141b
