In recent years, along with the improvement of the performance of personal computers and the progress of Internet, personal computers are widely used as information processing apparatus for not only computers, but also as information processing apparatus for use in communications of various types of information, for example, data communication between personal computers, data communication between a personal computer and a printer, data communication between a personal computer and a network, data communication between a personal computer and a server, data communication between a personal computer and a videophone, data communication between a personal computer and a portable telephone, and the like. In many cases, a user operates a personal computer through an interface having a touch panel (hereinafter simply referred to as touch panel) provided on a display screen of a monitor. For example, a user operates a personal computer having a monitor and a keyboard by pressing a key on a display screen with his finger or by selecting an icon displayed on the display screen. In order to operate a personal computer by the use of a mouse, the user touches a touch panel with a finger of his hand or with a dedicated pointing stick. However, in a case where a user operates a personal computer by
