This version history is the timeline showing the distinct changes made in that particular version. is not a tag, and in the new html structure can't appear inside a paragraph, so it has to be moved out.) A: That's a bit of a mess - you kinda have to save up your web design skills to deal with that sort of thing. You can simply wrap a block level div (with some border/padding, and float it to the left) around the text you want to appear at the top of the page - it'll just be outside the flow. Also, you'd need to make sure text-align: center; was also applied to the previous content/parent container/whatever - ie if you put text align:center on the top of the page, and then a div floated to the right, it'll space itself properly up the center. There has been known a fan unit having a double-blade fan, wherein a fan housing of the fan unit is positioned to a heat exchanger. Such type of fan unit is disclosed, for example, in Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open No. Heisei 7-292065, and Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open No. 2002-18842. According to the fan unit in each of the patents mentioned above, one blade of the fan is disposed vertically (radial direction of the fan). However, in case of a double-blade fan, it is necessary to dispose two blades in parallel with each other in order to obtain sufficient air quantity at a low rotational speed. In such case, it will be more difficult to remove strong wind noises from the blades having this configuration. In addition, if raindrops fall on the fan blades, sliding resistance of a rotor shaft becomes high. This is because the rotor shaft is directly touched by the rain drops and becomes wet. Such a rain drop may enter the fan housing, and the water inside the housing may negatively affect air passing through the fan. Further, in the fan housing, the rain drops may accumulate. The present invention has been achieved to solve such problem. An object of the present invention is to reduce a wind noise that is generated when wind blows on a fan blade and to effectively remove rain drops that have entered the fan housing. Further, another object of the present invention is to increase the durability of a fan unit by preventing rain drops that have entered the fan housing from being accumulated.// Copyright (c) FluentMigrator Author // <http://www.fluend>.
